Winter 2005

A Message from the 2004 Board President

2004 – A Year of Change, a Year of Transition

In 2004, changes were the norm at the Ohio Board of Examiners of Architects. The National Council of Architectural Registration Boards (NCARB) added several changes as well. The practice of Architecture continues to change as it reflects and morphs to the changes of society, the concerns for the environment, the geographic diversity of architects, and multiple state (and even other country) registrations.

The news from the State of Ohio Board of Examiners of Architects includes the retirement of Bill Wilcox, Continuing Education, and Rolling Clock for Registration Examination.

After 27 years as Executive Director of the Ohio Board of Examiners of Architects, Bill Wilcox, AIA retired in July, 2004. Amy Kobe, after six years as Executive Director of AIA Columbus, was selected as the new Board Executive Director. Amy brings a broad understanding of the profession and within her first weeks at the helm she was at the NCARB administrators' conference. This conference provided additional insight into the support and activities at NCARB and provided the opportunity for her to network with Directors from other states.

Ohio's mandatory Continuing Education legislation is on the Governor's desk for signature. While many Ohio Architects presently report all of their continuing education, we are aware that nearly all in daily practice exceed the typical minimum requirements. However, as a Board, we are well aware that those who come before us for a variety of potential violations of the rules for practice are not active in continuing education. Therefore, this legislation will encourage them to be better practitioners or allow us to take other appropriate actions. The end result for the public is a confidence in Architects not only meeting the requirements for initial registration but that the Architects have remained current. There are also direct benefits to the Architect with multiple state registrations. Many of the other states with Mandatory Continuing Education have differing requirements. However, most will defer to the architect's home state Continuing Education requirements, this simplifies the reporting for registration renewal.

The national conference of NCARB was held in Portland. Several actions were taken affecting the profession. Over recent history, the examination has been transitioning from an education and practice based exam toward strictly practice based. The underlying logic is most states now require a professional and accredited degree to sit for the exam. Therefore, NAAB by their accreditation of the school, and the school by the graduation of the candidate with an accredited degree, fulfill the education benchmark. Since the test is practice based and since the practice is now changing faster than ever before, a "rolling clock" for passing the examination will become effective January 1, 2006. It is a five year clock, that is, from the date a candidate passes the first section of the exam, they have up to 5 years to pass the last section. If they do not, only the sections not completed within the five year window require retake. Most candidates are currently passing within 3 to 4 years. And enough pass all sections within a year to validate the five year window as reasonable. The exam is updated as the profession changes; therefore, there are enough changes within the sections to also validate the need for a rolling clock to assure candidates are tested on the profession as it is at the time of passing.

Other issues under evaluation by the Board include electronic filing of documents for plan approvals, electronic seals, and electronic signatures. The Board is also investigating requirements for Architects in Design Build contracts to insure the Architect is identified, fining authority to the board for those breaking the laws and rules and communication with registrants regarding lapsed registration. As the profession evolves, the board must keep the requirements of registration current for the health, safety, and welfare of the public.

Much of our direction as a Board is established at periodic planning sessions allowing the Board to focus beyond the normal agenda requirements. It is these sessions that enable us to set the future direction and goals for change in rules and legislation as the profession changes. The planning session was held January 20 and 21, 2005 in Columbus.

Please contact me or any other Board member if you have questions or other information for the Board.

 Rule Change Affects A.R.E. Candidates**

A new rule regarding the Architect Registration Exam (A.R.E.) exam went into effect in Ohio on July 1, 2004. Candidates in the process of taking the A.R.E. must take at least one division of the A.R.E. within a five year period. This rule is slightly different from NCARB's five year rule which states all exams must be completed within five years.

Candidates not meeting this requirement must write the Board to request an extension and explain why they have not met the five-year time requirement. The Board may void the application.

If voided, a new application must be filed and the applicant must meet all current registration requirements. This includes the requirement of having a professional degree in architecture and completing IDP prior to taking the exam.

Candidates do not have to pass all portions of the A.R.E. within five years.

If you have questions, please contact the Board office.

New Registrants – During 2004, the following persons received licenses by examination. Each individual met the board's requirements regarding education, experience, and examination. If a name should have been on the list and is not, please contact the Board for inclusion in the next newsletter.

Does Your Firm Have a Certificate of Authorization?

The Board will continue its enforcement efforts to ensure that every architectural firm providing services in the state of Ohio has obtained a Certificate of Authorization. It makes no difference whether the organization is located in Ohio or out of state. No firm, partnership, association, limited liability company, or corporation, except a corporation that was granted a charter prior to August 7, 1943, to engage in providing architectural services, or that otherwise lawfully providing architectural services prior to November 15, 1982, shall provide architectural services in Ohio.

As a rule of thumb, any firm formed after 1982 is required to hold a Certificate of Authorization. However, an architect practicing as a sole proprietor is exempt from this requirement. Certain restrictions and professional ownership requirements do apply. Applications and instructions can be downloaded from the Board's website at www.arc.ohio.gov. If you are uncertain as to whether or not your firm is required to obtain a Certificate of Authorization, please call the Board at (614) 466-2316 prior to offering architectural services.

Are You Sealing Your Documents Properly?

The Board's investigator continues to make random inspections of building departments throughout Ohio ensuring that architects are properly sealing all documents submitted for permit. This includes commercial and residential documents, revisions and spec books. Architects are only required to emboss the title page or first sheet of bound drawings, or loose sheets, then sign over the embossed seal with an original ink signature. Although not required, it is recommended for added protection to date and seal all sheets with a rubber stamp or computer generated seal. If you have any questions regarding sealing procedures, please call the Board at (614) 466-2316.

Use of the Term "Intern Architect"

Each year, the Board receives dozens of complaints regarding non-architect employees of architectural firms that are illegally using the job title "Intern Architect", "Graduate Architect", "Architectural Designer" or some combination thereof on business cards, promotional material or media press releases. Unless your employee is an architect, it is unlawful to advertise, promote or hold them out as an "Intern Architect" or use any derivation of the word architect. Should you have any questions, please call the Board office at (614) 466-2316.

Want to File a Complaint?

The Board actively investigates complaints against architects, architectural firms and unlicensed persons for violation of Ohio's laws and regulations regarding the practice of architecture. If you have evidence of a possible violation, you are encouraged to file a complaint, provide information or discuss the matter further with the Board's Investigator. Complaint forms can be downloaded from the Board's website. If you want to file a complaint, please contact: Chad B. Holland, Investigator. Telephone: (614) 466-2316, fax, (614) 644-9048, email, choll@mail.peps.state.oh.us.

After conducting an investigation, the Board determined that a technical violation might have been committed.
